

Web coders, also known as web developers, take a company's vision and transform it into computer language (coding) through computer system designs. Developers use their coding skills to create websites, advertisements, graphic designs, and other types of digital media. Because pretty much all organizations these days need a website, developers are in high demand and work for a wide variety of customers.

Fast Facts

- Salary: $69,430
- Education:
Associate's Degree in computer science

Soft Skills

- Problem-Solving
- Communication
- Analytical skills

Hard Skills

- Programming skills
- Graphic Design
- Information tech./
computer skills

Web Coder